

Four months given

Upland grants extension for water-bill payments

By DINAH ROSE
Staff Writer

City officials have granted Upland residents up to four months to pay what homeowners called "abnormally high" water bills received in the past month.

Residents from the northeast sector of the city approached the city council Monday night to challenge the steep charges on water bills from mid-June to August. Homeowners from Tapia Way and 20th Street east of Euclid Avenue told the council their bills for the two-month period equalled more than the total for the previous year in some cases.

City officials said the high totals were largely the result of increased summer usage, and accumulated effects of several months of estimated readings.

Mayor John McCarthy said the meter reader responsible for the area was fired in early September, seven months after being hired, for reading water meters inadequately.

Apparently, he took the easy way out and estimated readings, he told the residents. He added that the August billing was the first accurate reading in months, and reflected the additional water used that had not yet been charged to the customer.

City Finance Director Tim Brown said that since the water had actually been used, the bills would have to be paid. But letters are being sent out this week informing area residents they may have up to four months to pay off the large amounts.

Brown said the move, unprecedented in the city's history, was an effort to help homeowners amortize the higher bills over several months.

Residents at the meeting were apparently dissatisfied with the city's response. John Blakely, of 2045 Tapia Way, said it should not be the homeowner's responsibility to bear the burden of larger bills, and, he said, the city should more closely supervise the meter readers.

McCarthy refuted charges by some residents that the meters had been "tampered with."

"The meters are tested and sealed at the factory," he said. "There is no way city employees could make any changes."

He said workers had been sent out to determine if leakage was causing some of the higher readings, and had found no problems with the meters.

Most of the homes in question are on half-acre lots, many of them about a year old. Brown said some homeowners may be experiencing their first summer with a fully-landscaped lot, and their bills reflect the high cost of lawn care.

Larry Dilley, director of the water department, said he inspected a sprinkling system of one homeowner at the homeowner's request. He determined it would cost about $75 per billing period to water the lawn and keep the pool filled.

The finance department is responsible for overseeing the meter readers, and Brown said policy is generally to rotate the city's three meter readers during each billing period to guarantee readings are accurate.

Due to personnel difficulties in the past several months, he said the workers had not been rotated, resulting in the northeast section of the city suffering the most from estimated readings.

He warned, however, there may be more areas affected in the next billing period.

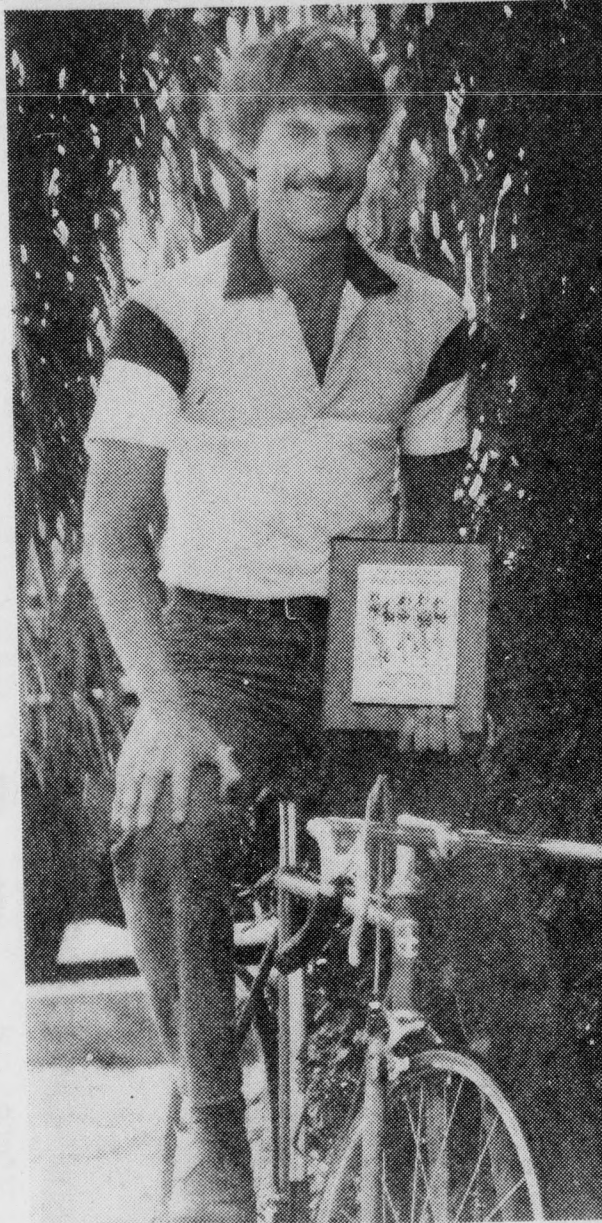

McCarthy pointed out that bills over the last several periods had been low, citing the result of a special reading on one household June 30.

That house used 189 units of water during the billing period according to the special reading, while other homes in the neighborhood varied from 24 to 66 units for the same period.

He said this was an example of the estimated readings that billings had been based upon.

Officials said bills should begin to stabilize now that meters are being read correctly, and a more dependable monthly charge can be given.

City Manager Lee Travers warned, however, that September-October is traditionally one of the highest usage rates of the year, and homeowners should take the hot weather into consideration when receiving the next bill.

Crime prevention

State funding will aid new program

About $2.1 million in state money will be available next year for crime prevention programs throughout the county through the Justice System Subventions.

San Bernardino County will receive requests for grants until Jan. 5, 1981. These grants are for one year only and receipt of previous year funds is not an assurance that an agency will automatically receive funding for 1981-82.

The state's subvention program is designed to assist counties to maintain and improve the local criminal justice system; reduce the number of offenders re-entering the local criminal justice system; protect and care for children who need services because of truancy or running away or who are beyond the control of their parents.

Agencies interested in applying for funds should contact the county administrative office, 157 W. 5th St., 2nd Floor, County Civic Building, San Bernardino 92415.

Telephone inquiries may be directed to Bert Bigler (714) 383-3435.

A proclamation has been written and signed by Ontario Mayor Robert E. Ellingwood making Oct. 10 through Oct. 13 Cal-Aero Days in Ontario.

The special days have been set aside to acknowledge the Cal-Aero Flight Academy which was established 40 years ago to train the needed Army Air Corps pilots at Chino Airport. There were 3,500 cadets who received their pilots' wings.

The alumni of the academy have planned a reunion from Oct. 10 to 13 to recall the memories of their historic contributions to the service of the United States during World War II.

The public is invited to the Chino Airport on Oct. 11 to relive history. Rep. Jim Lloyd (D-35th District) will be one of the keynote speakers.

"A Sentimental Journey," a USO-style show will be presented at noon by the Ontario Historic Landmark Society. Members will depict the dance style, fashions, music and a wedding of "those wonderful, crazy days of the early 1940s."

The anniversary and open house are conducted under the auspices of the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors, San Bernardino County Airport Commission, Norton and George Air Force Bases, the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, California Air National Guard, Chino Airport Council, Planes of Fame Air Museum, Chino and Ontario Chambers of Commerce, Ontario International Airport and the Ontario Historical Landmark Society.

Most of these organizations or their predecessors were supporters of the Cal-Aero Flight Academy when it was initially established.

Academy alumni or anyone interested in further information about the celebration are asked to contact Geary L. Tracy, coordinator, at the Ontario City Library, 988-8481.

Odd-even plan officially ends

By DON GREEN and VIRGINIA SOMMER
Staff Writers

With the official end of the odd-even gas allocation plan, motorists are no longer violating the law for "wrong" day purchases, station owners see the end of a "useless" regulation and the county is exploring what conservation steps it may need to take.

Although the odd-even plan has been largely ignored, the faded green and red flags served as a casual reminder of the frustrating days when gasoline supplies were short.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. signed the bill Wednesday formally putting an end to the state odd-even plan that service station owners agreed was "useless and unnecessary" and giving broad authority to counties for gas conservation.

Brown imposed the program last November by executive order during the crisis in Iran.

Earl Bennett, an Upland Mobil station owner, echoed the feelings of most of his fellow retailers. "We haven't paid much attention to it (odd-even) for the past few months anyway."

"I was talking to an Arco representative who told me most stations aren't even selling the allocation they have now," Bennett said. Sales are about 20 percent below allocation amounts, so why did we need rationing now?"

Virgil Sullivan, an Ontario Chevron station owner, called the plan "a big farce to start with" and felt it should have been dropped months ago.

"Government should have kept out of it because the problem really got worse when they interfered," Sullivan added.

Owners don't seem to be worried with whatever San Bernardino County might come up with in the form of alternative conservation plans.

Jerry Hanna of Joe's Richfield in Montclair thinks that the customers are taking care with their buying habits and will avert any shortage voluntarily.

"People just aren't buying as much," Hanna said. "It has dropped away off."

Many stations reported lowering gasoline prices. One "cut-rate" station in Ontario cited reductions three times in the last month.

Under the new legislation, each county will be responsible for meeting gasoline conservation goals through voluntary measures, but the state may step in if a county fails to meet those goals.

Lynn Kirkhofer, assistant administrative officer for the county, said he got his first look at the new law this morning. He outlined some of its basic provisions.

The conservative goal for San Bernardino and California's other 57 counties is to keep gasoline consumption at or below 95 percent of the monthly consumption during a base period, July 1977 to June 1980.

For each month, the goal is found by taking an average of gas use for that month during the three years and calculating 95 percent of that figure.

If the county fails to meet its goal for three consecutive months, then the governor could impose measures after a proclamation of emergency.

Kirkhofer said a report on the legislation will be prepared for the county Board of Supervisors, probably in two or three weeks.

Under the legislation, the county has authority to start its own odd-even plan, restrict hours of sale and set limits on minimum and maximum purchases. These measures could be in both unincorporated areas and in cities.

Without the figures on the county's gasoline consumption, Kirkhofer was unable to say this morning what measures, if any, might be recommended to the board.

The board has previously expressed concerns about the odd-even plan, and the county won exemption from the plan for the desert area.

Omnitrans plans $25,000 promotion

With two dissenting votes, the Omnitrans board of directors voted Wednesday at a meeting in San Bernardino to authorize expenditure of $25,675 to promote the use of 41 new RTS-II (Rapid Transit Series) buses. The vehicles are scheduled to begin arriving late this month.

A proposed three-month marketing campaign to advance the use of the buses as a means of increasing current Omnitrans ridership was presented to the board in writing by Charlene Johnston, director of marketing services.

SCAG still wants vehicle inspections

By Vonne Robertson
Staff Writer

The Southern California Association of Governments, composed of local governments from six counties, will continue to work for a state vehicle inspection program and try to help solve the Southern California housing shortage, hazardous waste disposal problems and critical water needs, delegates were informed Thursday in Claremont.

Opening an all-day general assembly at Griswold's SCAG President Henry W. Wedda told 300 participants the state Legislature must pass vehicle inspection legislation or face the loss of federal funds. The Legislature failed to pass any vehicle inspection program during the past session.

"Local government can develop strategies to meet the problems with state and federal government," he added.

He also stated a special task force has been created by SCAG to develop programs to assure adequate disposal of hazardous wastes. He said districts need to develop regional responses.

He also reported the organization worked in support of the peripheral canal legislation and will continue to work to control water costs.

In his brief remarks to open the conference, Wedda said many communities are complaining of the low population figures reported by the Bureau of the Census.

One of the afternoon workshops centered on the current housing shortage in Southern California and what SCAG might do to overcome the shortage of moderately priced homes.

"Each jurisdiction will take steps to pursue the correct figures," he added. The allocation of many state and federal funds are based upon population statistics.

The president, a Yorba Linda City Council member, warned local elected and appointed officials that they may be asked to go to Washington, D.C. and Sacramento to express their views. "Local government needs to be better served."

The morning session focused on the political and ethical dilemma of redistricting — how legislative and congressional seats will be allocated in California after the results of the 1980 census are released next year.

The presentation was in the form of a mock trial, complete with judge, bailiffs, witnesses and even "James Madison" recalling how he wrote the Constitution.

Assemblyman Mike Roos, D-46th District, defended the current system of redistricting. He is chairman of the Assembly Elections and Reapportionment Committee which will oversee the process next year.

Ross and his witnesses argued the Legislature is better suited than any other body to produce redistricting plans that promote community interest.

"Prosecuting" the current system was Alfred Balitzer, coordinator of research at the Rose Institute of State and Local Government at Claremont Men's College.

Balitzer and his witnesses claimed the redistricting process which occurred in the 1970s resulted in flagrant gerrymandering to assure that incumbent legislators remained in office.

The chief prosecution witness was Dixon Arnett, vice president of public affairs research at CMC and a former state legislator. Arnett used slides to show the oddly shaped districts which have been created in the state to help either a Republican or Democrat incumbent protect his seat. Balitzer charged that the present districts can destroy communities and deprive minorities of a voice in their government.

In his summary, Roos stated no seat is really safe. He said most legislators work to stay in office by being responsive to and reflecting the views of the people they represent.

Both sides in the mock trial agreed that redistricting is among the most important issues in the state. They also agreed it is among the least understood by the public.

Adding a lighter touch to the SCAG conference which included a number of afternoon workshops, political consultant Hal Evry recounted his successful methods in marketing a candidate.

Evry, author of "The Selling of a Candidate," has a 94 percent win record in the more than 500 election campaigns he's directed in 20 states.

"Seventy percent of a candidate's budget goes for advertising," he said. "This, along with first-class letters, gets the most attention for a candidate." He predicted that even more advertising will be used in the future.

His other advice was to never let the candidate make public appearance. "Send him on a trip, if possible," he added.

SCAG represents county and municipal governments in Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura counties. It develops areawide plans for community and economic development, transportation, energy, environmental quality and resource conservation and human services.

OmniTrans postpones schedule, route changes to allow comment

By BRUCE THORNTON
Staff Writer

A public hearing on proposed route and schedule changes conducted by the OmniTrans board of directors Wednesday morning in San Bernardino was continued until the board's 8 a.m. Nov. 5 meeting.

The delay was approved to permit additional "public comment on the proposed route revisions."

Most of the speakers were from the San Bernardino-Redlands area. Many of their suggestions were aimed at improving transportation for the disabled and elderly.

None of the speakers was from the West End — a fact that was noted by Upland City Councilman Frank Carpenter, a member of the board.

Carpenter said a public hearing should be held in the West End to get public reaction to the changes there.

Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino noted that a number of hearings — first during the afternoons and then in the evenings — were conducted before Carpenter became a member of the board and that they were sparsely attended.

But later, Carpenter — after consulting with some of his colleagues in the West End — told a reporter that citizens would be invited to present their views on the proposed changes at the next West Valley TSA board meeting at 3 p.m. Oct. 16 in Montclair City Hall.

Bob Neves, coordinator of Access, Alert and Telcom D. three programs that function under the county Community Services Department, asked that the hearing be continued. This, he said, would enable him to get "formal input" from the Access California Advisory Committee and from the Paratransit Coalition, for which he is a resource person.

Neves said after the hearing that the Access California Advisory Committee will hold a public meeting at noon Oct. 14 in the commissioner's conference room of the Community Services Department, 686 E. Mill St., San Bernardino.

He said the purpose of the meeting will be to receive public comment on the proposed route changes and paratransit services, primarily for the handicapped and elderly.

OmniTrans suggested route and schedule changes after a 10-week study of the county's public transit needs.

Representatives of the company — ATE Management and Service

Co., Inc., of Cincinnati — outlined proposed changes late last May at a meeting in Montclair of the West Valley Transit Service Authority board.

The representatives also noted that the three major focal points of the OmniTrans bus system are at Sultana Avenue and D Street — near the Ontario Civic Center — the Montclair Plaza Shopping Center and San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

One of the representatives said the objective of the team that conducted the study was "to find out where routes should be."

Consequently, he said, the team "reoriented a lot of service toward the Montclair shopping center, with less orientation toward Sultana and D."

How to deal with family issues on local level

By LINDA BERGSTEDT
Panorama Editor

Family stability, child care, tax relief and help for the handicapped were key issues emerging from the White House Conference on Families of particular interest to the three women attending the Los Angeles portion of the event.

Second of Two Stories

During a recent interview, the three — Dr. Ella Mitchell of Claremont, a delegate, and Shirley Abrams of Pomona and Dorothy Bingham of Ontario, guests — discussed how these issues could be dealt with on a local level.

"It's not always up to government. We must look at what we can do in our community," said Mrs. Abrams.

It could be something as simple as respecting the handicapped restricted parking places, she suggested. "People need to look at the needs and see what they can do to help," she continued.

In discussing the need for child care, Mrs. Abrams said, "We want good care, not just a place to dump them, but a place where they can develop education, health and social relations."

Mrs. Mitchell, an American Baptist minister and a retired school teacher, talked about concepts of families as she related her personal experience of her own extended family that includes a son who is Korean. As a black woman educator and minister, she is considered an international consultant on multi-cultural education.

"There are different kinds of families, we are talking here about an extended family — but that is one place where he (her son) could get love," she said.

An issue of tremendous importance to Mrs. Mitchell is tax relief for the aging. She also said she feels there should be some "government input for families — not welfare, per se, but some kind of supportive care," she said. She also expressed concern over battered children, "who need help."

"What has always bothered me," she said, "is that doctors offer physical care, but nobody has ever said how to bridge the gap from birth to living."

"There shouldn't be any static definition of family," said Mrs. Abrams, president of the California Council on Children and Youth. "What we're trying to do is open up the definition of family to include traditional, step, adoptive, extended."

"The basic needs are all the same for all kinds of families," she added.

"But what is the definition of family?"

John S. Godinho Jr. of Chino has received the Salesman of the Year Award from United National Life Insurance Society for the fifth consecutive year.

Albert Soares, president of the society, made the presentation during a convention held recently in San Diego.

Godinho also won the Million Dollar Club award for the current year. He has won the same award for the past six years. Godinho has been Southern California area supervisor since 1974 and has had an insurance office in Chino for 12 years.

Joseph F. Thalken of Ontario is enrolled as a freshman at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., in the school of music. He is the son of Francis G. and Madelyn T. Thalken of Ontario.

The Western San Bernardino County Bar Association honored three of the West End's Superior Court clerks who recently retired.

During a luncheon at The Arbor Restaurant, Upland, James Stone, Georgiana Lovelady and Marilyn Morrell were feted and thanked for their many years of service to the Bar Association and to the people of San Bernardino County. Superior Court Judge Kenneth G. Ziebarth Jr. presented Plaques to each retiree.

Stone, who was the West End's branch supervisor, first came to the Superior Court in August of 1957. Morrell was primarily responsible for maintaining the calendar of cases heard by the Superior Court and had spent 13 years in the clerk's office. Lovelady began working for the court in January of 1963 and was primarily responsible for supervising the court's probate matters.

Jane Holcombe, associate dean of students for housing and activities at Pitzer College in Claremont since January 1979, has been appointed dean of students. She is enrolled in the doctoral program in higher education at Claremont Graduate School.

Debbie Thornton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Thornton of Ontario, has entered the freshman class at Mount St. Mary's College, Los Angeles.

Daryl Musser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Musser of Upland, is serving as activities vice president for the Messiah College student body for the 1980-81 year. He is a business major senior at the college located in Grantham, Pa.

Entering the freshman year at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado are: Janice B. Brabec, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josef E. Brabec of Alta Loma; Robert B. Mohan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Patrick Mohan of Upland; and Christopher T. Nowak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theo T. Nowak of Upland.

The three began four years of academic study and military training that will lead to receiving bachelor of science degrees and commissions as second lieutenants in the Air Force.

Airman Steven E. Shelton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Shelton of Upland, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force avionics communications systems course at Keesler Air Force Base, Mississippi. He now will serve at Wurtsmith AFB in Michigan.

Airman Paul M. Britz, son of Paul V. Britz of Montclair, has graduated from the U.S. Air Force aircraft maintenance specialist course at Chanute AFB, Illinois. He will now serve at Norton AFB in San Bernardino.

Airman Reel R. Hough IV, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reel R. Hough III of Ontario, has completed U.S. Air Force basic training and will receive specialized instruction in wire maintenance and will be based at Sheppard AFB, Texas.

Airman Joseph I. Vazquez, son of Ivan A. Vazquez of Montclair, has completed Air Force basic training and will receive specialized instruction in aircraft maintenance. He will be based at Chanute AFB, Illinois.

Airman John M. Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Howard, Upland, has completed Air Force basic training and will receive specialized training in the security police field. He will receive credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force. He will be based at Lackland AFB, Texas, where all three men received their basic training.

Mrs. Mitchell agreed, saying, "Would you describe an American for me?"

The White House Conference on Families was held this summer in three parts — one in Baltimore, Md., another in Minneapolis, Minn., and the final one in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Abrams explained that a White House Conference does not mean a Presidential conference, but expresses national concern and federally focused recommendations to the people and their elected representatives.

Although she tried diligently to become a delegate, Mrs. Bingham attended the conference as a guest. As a member of Friends Outside (a group supporting families of prison inmates), a member of Urban League and state co-chairman of citizen action for Church Women United, she was particularly interested in action taken at the conference.

She recalled that at the time of President Jimmy

Carter's inauguration, Church Women United presented him with a "People's Platform" empowerment of women and family stability.

"If we don't save the children, there is nothing left," she said.

"How can we save the children unless we help the world we live in," Mrs. Abrams said, citing public apathy and fear. She sees individuals withdrawing from problems and pulling in because of their fear over what's happening in society.

"What is happening at these conferences is that we are taking the total picture and zeroing in on all angles, creating a real awareness of a multitude of needs, focusing in on common ones," Mrs. Abrams said.

"Everyone has needs. We need to start looking at human needs of us all and how things affect people."

The local women talked about how the pro-family group disrupted the conference and tried to push their issues rather than coming to an understanding or compromise with others.

"We're concerned that people look at concerns of families, that they meet the basic needs and cries for help," Mrs. Abrams said. "We're trying to show we're not alone. We want to go back to the community and show people that they are not alone."

"I feel we have to look beyond the issues," she said.

While a national conference gives focus to local issues and commissions, what can be accomplished in a given community is up to those living there to a certain extent, Mrs. Abrams believes.

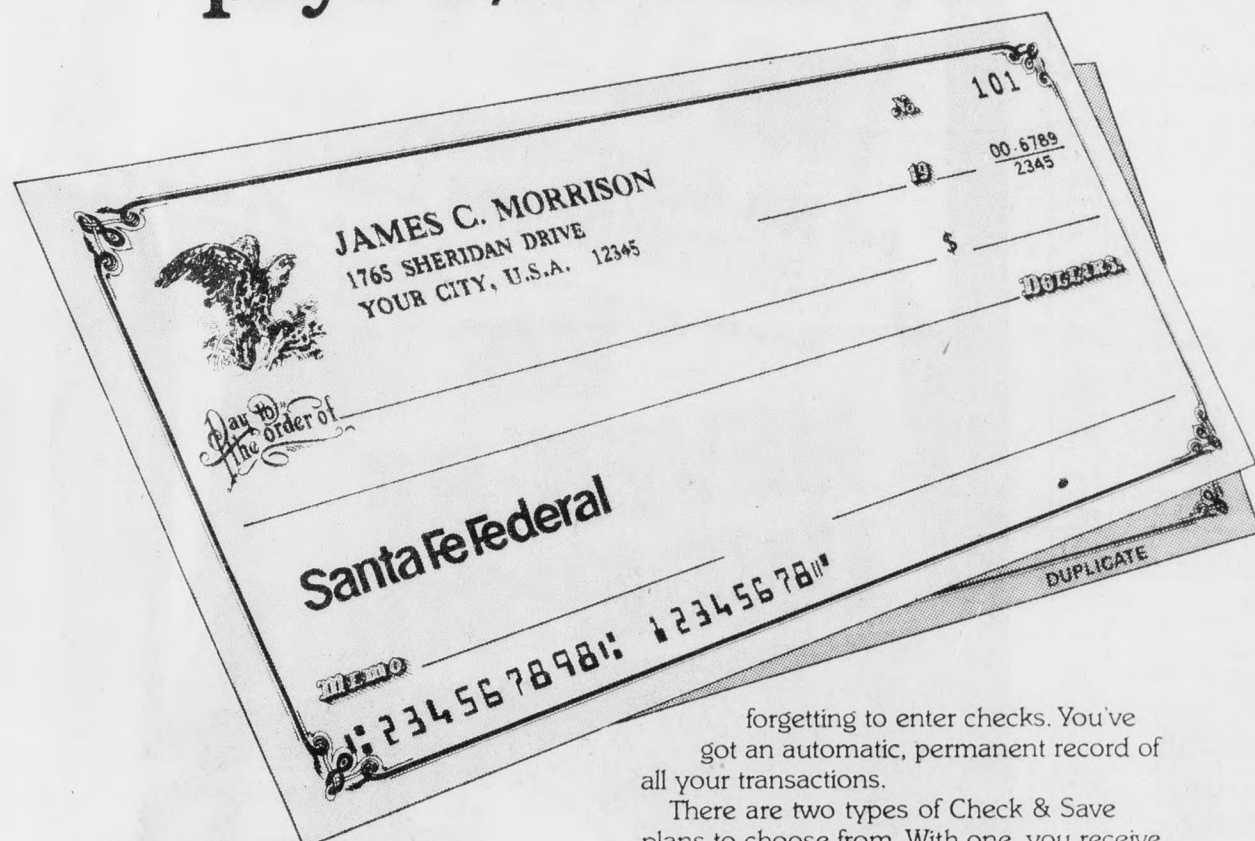

"It all starts with respect — respect for others and their beliefs but everyone needs to be willing to listen and learn and then develop a compromise."

"We really want the same things, but we are just taking a different approach," she said in calling for unity, mutual respect and compromise.
